The Getty offers breathtaking views of Los Angeles from its perch on a hill just above Bel-Air. One of the most visited museums in the country, its works span the eighth through the twentieth century including European paintings, sculpture, decorative arts and a rich photographic collection against a backdrop of stunning pavilions and rotundas. Its heart lies in its ever-changing Central Garden. Meandering streams through a natural ravine, fountains, shaded sanctuaries and tree-lined paths create a feast of light and color that is truly unforgettable.
